4th In 5 Years!

MINGES SCIENCE HALL DEDICATED

Lenoir Rhyne college dedicated its fourth new building in five years during February—the Minges Science building, a $572,000 reinforced concrete structure, the gift of Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Minges of Rocky Mount and family.

The main speaker for the occasion, D. Mitchell Cox, vice-president of Pepsi-Cola Company in charge of public relations, reminded the participants in the dedication service that, "This building is of the future, not of the present. Generations yet unborn will study there to add their learning to what has gone on before, so that the horizons of science keep moving forward."

The science building was partially occupied in September, and fully occupied in December. Within its 38,143 square feet of floor space are included lecture rooms, laboratories, seminar rooms, faculty offices, and other necessary facilities for the housing of the college physics, chemistry, and biology departments. An unfinished area on the ground floor of the three-story structure has been left for future expansion as the need develops.

Mr. Cox went on to caution the college in the use of the science facilities by saying, "Science can fail even in its most successful growth. It can fail if it becomes the master of man for man's destruction instead of man's slave for advancement. It can fail if its discoveries destroy mankind. It will fail unless every student of science remembers that science is but one branch of man's approach to the eternal question of what is truth, what is beauty, what are life and death, what is man's relation to man and to God.

"Science must always remember that, as the Pope once said, the proper study of mankind is man, and that all avenues of learning must lead to defining man and the verities.

"Science, thus, is of the future for it never accepts today's 'truth' as finally true; it keeps on searching for the eternal truth."

Before a crowd of approximately 400 persons, Dr. Voigt R. Cromer, president of Lenoir Rhyne, accepted the keys to the Minges building and, in turn, recognized the 13-member family who donated it to the college. The donors include Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Minges of Rocky Mount; L. Dean Minges, Fayetteville; Richard B. Minges, Fayetteville; Herman S. Minges, Lumberton; John T. Minges, Rocky Mount; Edwin L. Minges, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Charles R. Minges, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Mary Minges Hilliard, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Emily Minges Mitchell, Newport News, Va.; Mrs. Helen Minges Field, Macon, Ga.;

and William C. Minges, deceased.

Dr. F. L. Conrad, president of the North Carolina Synod of the United Evangelical Lutheran church, which owns and operates Lenoir Rhyne, performed the act of dedication.

Following the formal service held in P. E. Monroe Auditorium, the Minges building was opened for visitors.

Since the beginning of the 1955-1960 building program at the college, the Shuford Memorial Gymnasium, Morgan Hall men's dormitory, and the P. E. Monroe auditorium have been dedicated.

Near future building plans at the college call for the erection of a college union building.

Harry Golden Speaks To College Listeners

"America is not geography, America is an idea with a capital 'I.'"

This idea, said Harry Golden, author of bestsellers, "Only in America," and "For 2c Plain," is the unique concept of human dignity.

In young America, Mr. Golden explained to Lenoir Rhyne college students during a recent visit to the campus, if you had ambition and ability, you were there. It was a country of tremendous vitality.

"I think," Mr. Golden said sadly, "that we've lost much of the vitality in recent years.

Editor of the Carolina Israelite a monthly tabloid made up of editorials, and essays by himself, the well-known Charlottean touched on both immigration and segregation problems in his plea to re-establish the principle of human dignity in America—the basis, he said, of American democracy.

On both problems, Mr. Golden is an informed speaker. Being reared in the lower East Side of New York City, he migrated to Charlotte nearly 20 years ago to start his Israelite. Since then, circulation of his paper has grown to over 45,000 world-wide, and its editor has published two bestsellers within the past three years.

LR, GRACE HOSPITAL CONTRACT IN NURSES TRAINING PROGRAM

A full and comprehensive four years is in the planning for student nurses by Lenoir Rhyne college of Hickory and Grace hospital of Morganton.

In order to produce more versatile and better prepared ladies in white, the college and Grace Hospital signed a contract January, 1959, by which student nurses will take the equivalent of three years academic work at Lenoir Rhyne and then two years of training at Grace. Under this program, effective in September, the student will earn her R.N. and B.S. degree in General Science—Nursing.

According to Mrs. Zonie Houston, director of Nursing at Grace, the college background will produce nurses who are more mature, more aware of their patients' needs, and with the knowledge of how to study effectively. It will upgrade the nursing program and make possible a greater number of nurses attending graduate school.

E. L. Setzler, LR's academic dean, echoes her enthusiasm. He says, "There is a normal need for more training. The greatest percent of nurses go into training directly from high school. By having the additional college benefits, they are socially and culturally better prepared for their work and automatically eligible for further work on the graduate nurse level."

Lenoir Rhyne is the third college in North Carolina to participate in a nursing program of such a rigorous nature. A total of 96 academic hours, with 32 hours granted for the hospital training, will be required for the B.S. degree. Other schools whose requirements follow the same lines include Duke university and the University of North Carolina.

Grace hospital will be in charge of the preliminary applications of a minimum of 15 to a maximum of 30 students who will then make a second application to the college. These applications will be processed to see if they meet the entrance requirements. According to Grace hospital officials, 19 such applications have been received.

After completing the general liberal arts requirements of the college plus basic science courses—16 to 20 hours of biology and chemistry—the student is ready for her specialized hospital training. Her work at LR may be completed in two academic years plus two full sessions of summer school, or in three regular academic years. During this period, the nurses will spend a day each week at Grace to keep in contact with the nursing profession.

Two years at the hospital in an extensive nursing program which includes three months at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington, D. C., for training in psychiatric treatment, completes the undergraduate work of the student nurse.

At the end of this time, each nurse takes a state examination for the R.N. degree. If she successfully passes this test, she is then awarded her degree from Lenoir Rhyne along with her black-striped cap.

LR Debators Take 3 Of 5 Trophies

Lenoir Rhyne debators captured three of five trophies awarded at the South Atlantic Forensic tournament held on campus this month.

The Sweepstakes trophy, awarded to the team totaling the most points in formal debate rounds and individual contests went to Lenoir Rhyne, with Mars Hill as runner-up. Best Affirmative team trophy went to the college affirmative team composed of Judie Bittinger of Greensboro, and Sybil Sharpe of Hickory. Judie Bittinger also won the Women's Best Debator award, with Sybil Sharpe a close runner-up.

Maryville entrants took the Men's Best Debator award, in both first and second places. Mars Hill and Maryville teams tied for the Best Negative team trophy, with Lenoir Rhyne as the runner-up.

The transportation stand-still due to the heavy snowfall in the area prevented nine of the originally scheduled 13 teams from attending this twenty-seventh annual South Atlantic Forensics meet. Colleges participating were Mars Hill, Maryville (Tenn.), Western Carolina, and Lenoir Rhyne. Rounds of debate were cut from seven to four.

In the individual contests, Lenoir Rhyne debators placed five firsts and four seconds. The firsts—women's standard oratory, Brenda Chester; women's extempore, Judie Bittinger; women's address reading, Sybil Sharpe; women's poetry reading, Sybil Sharpe; women's radio newscast, Patricia Ullman. Seconds—men's standard oratory, George Lingle; men's address reading, Robert Land; men's poetry reading, Robert Land; and women's after dinner speaking, Judie Bittinger.

HOW DOES THE

Mauney Music building—expected to be finished in May.

How does a college grow?

Experts say that a college must grow internally as well as externally, which is certainly true of Lenoir Rhyne college, Hickory.

The last decade has seen this small liberal arts college move to the ranks of North Carolina's most noted educational institutions.

Experts also say that a college's growth must be planned growth. Lenoir Rhyne's progress over the ten years of the 1950's has been guided by two intensive surveys—the Dr. Orville Dahl Report, and the Dr. Gould Wickey Report.

The Dahl report concerns mainly the physical structure of the campus—showing what is needed and suggesting means of achieving the highest possible good from each existing building.

The Gould Wickey report, prepared as a service by the Board of Higher Education of the United Lutheran Church in America, whose North Carolina synod owns and operates Lenoir Rhyne, gives insight to the administrative and student body problems. Both reports have been utilized, and will be utilized in the furtherance of the present long-range development program designed to make Lenoir Rhyne an even more outstanding finger of instruction.

Heading the 10-year phase of development just completed at Lenoir Rhyne was Dr. Voigt R. Cromer, president of the institution, who was inaugurated to his post in 1949.

In a review to the college Board of Trustees on the additions and changes made in the past ten years, Dr. Cromer shows an optimistic and challenging outlook for the future decade when he says, "Perhaps there is some justification for reviewing periodically some of the more significant stops of the course we have taken—not with any sense of pride, however, for a sharp awareness of unmet needs and opportunities immediately punctures any balloon of conceit one might begin to inflate.

"The more obvious development in the last decade has been in the realm of the physical and material . . . Emphasis upon physical facilities has been imperative because we have been limited in our program of inadequate space and tools."

To alleviate the space and facility problems, the Dahl blueprint for the college was placed under the spotlight.

Out of the imagination of this planning consultant, who has since accepted appointment as president of the new California Lutheran college, and funds provided by the $1,500,000 Christian Higher Education drive for Lenoir Rhyne, augmented by other gifts totaling $1,400,000, seven new buildings were erected on the city campus, one more is under construction, and another is in the planning stages.

Built since 1950 are Fritz Hall, originally designed as a men's dormitory, and since converted for women's usage; a new home for the president of the college, a maintenance building; Shuford Memorial gymnasium, the gift of Shuford Mills, Inc., of Hickory; the P. E. Monroe auditorium, Morgan dormitory for men; and the Minges Science building, donated by the Luther L. Minges family of Rocky Mount.

Under construction now is the Mauney Music building, a gift of the W. K. Mauney family of Kings Mountain. The proposed college union building which is mentioned most explicitly by Dr. Dahl as a much needed structure is expected to be begun in 1960.

Revision of the program of instruction came with the additions to the physical capacities of Lenoir Rhyne. Some of the more significant changes in the instructional offerings were:

- Revision of the offerings in the department of mathematics to provide better opportunities for students with varying levels of preparation.

- Establishment of a major in special education for the teaching of the deaf in collaboration with the North Carolina School for the Deaf in Morganton.

- Establishment of a major in general science for medical technologists, in collaboration with Bowman Gray hospital, Winston-Salem, and with Presbyterian hospital, Charlotte.

- Establishment of a major in religious education for parish workers, separate from the major of those preparing to enter theological schools, to better qualify students to meet the growing demand in this field.

- Establishment of a major in general science for nursing, in collaboration with Grace hospital, Morganton. This is effective the fall semester of 1960. Applications are still available for the four-year course, which leads to a Bachelor of Science and a Registered Nurse degree.

- Establishment of a major in sociology.

- Expansion of the curriculum in public speaking and dramatics looking forward to offering a major in this field when it is possible.

- Raising of entrance requirements with a corresponding revision in the curriculum involving scope, description, content, and sequence of courses.

- Accreditation by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, preceded by an examination and evaluation of the program by a committee of specialists.

The Fifties showed an upswing for Lenoir Rhyne in both students and administration.

Enrollment increased from 792 in the 1949-1950 session to 965 in the fall semester of the 1959-1960 session. While the co-educational college had only 41 faculty members in 1949-1950, it boasted 57 faculty members in 1959.

With the 68th commencement in 1959, the college reached a grand total of 1,119 Bachelor degrees awarded during the 10-year period, 46 percent of all degrees conferred since the founding of the college in 1891. During the same decade 465 certificates were granted for commercial courses completed.

As Dr. Wickey advised, changes were made in the administration of the college itself. Additions to the staff included a Dean of Students, an Alumni Secretary and Director of Public Relations, a Business Manager, and an additional full-time librarian.

In the past two years, the student body at Lenoir Rhyne has moved into an era of complete student government with only a minimum of faculty supervision. New office procedures have been instituted. The position of the alumni in the future of Lenoir Rhyne has become more sharply defined, and their efforts on behalf of their alma mater more concentrated.

Foreseen for the decade Lenoir Rhyne is now entering is marked progress in many fields—physical facilities, enrollment endowment, staff, and academic program. Dr. Cromer has outlined as follows:

- Erection of the college union building.

- Remodeling and enlarging of the administration offices.

- Additions to the campus itself by the acquisition of adjacent property as it becomes available, increasing the present 57 acres to approximately 80 acres or more.

- Erection of a new women's dormitory.

- Enlargement and improvement of the recreation areas, including additions to the football stadium, and to the facilities for track, tennis, soccer, archery, and others.

- Increase in parking facilities.

- Erection of a new physical education building for women, and a swimming pool.

- Erection of a classroom building.

- Addition to the Carl A. Rudisill library.

- Erection of a campanile (bell tower).

- Continued beautification program for the campus.

Plans are being made to increase the present enrollment of approximately 960 to an enrollment of 1200 as dining and dorm facilities are made available. In other fields, these changes are anticipated:

- An increase of endowment with emphasis upon endowed professorships.

- Further exploration of sources for supplementing operating income.

- Addition of a chaplain, a director of development, and teaching personnel in keeping with curriculum and enrollment

'Faith' Lectures Were Top February Events

Faith and Life series lecturer Rev. Robert J. Marshall of the Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary conducted a five-part series on "Faith - Vocation - Mission" and "The Dead Sea Scrolls," at Lenoir Rhyne during February.

Rev. Marshall was the second speaker in the 1959-1960 academic year series which brings into the college community scholars who will probe the central issues of the Christian faith.

An Iowa native, the visiting minister received his A. B. degree from Whittenberg university in 1941 and his B. D. from Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary in 1944, and followed up his work with graduate study at the University of Chicago.

Rev. Marshall was pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, Alhambra, California, prior to becoming an instructor in religion at Muhlenberg college, Allentown, Pennsylvania. Since 1953 he has held his present position of professor of Old Testament interpretation at the Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary in Maywood, Illinois.

In 1958 and 1959 he served as annual professor at the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, Jordan, where he studied and worked with the Dead Sea Scrolls.

The Faith and Life series, sponsored three times each year by the LR religious council, is made possible through the J. E. Cansler Memorial fund.

requirements.

- Conduction of a comprehensive institutional self-study with the assistance of visiting consultants, followed by revisions of program on the basis of results of the study.

- Further expansion of student personnel services with special emphasis upon spiritual ministry to be headed by the chaplain.

- Further raising of the academic standards.

- Further development of the department of religious studies for the preparation of more students for service in church occupations.

- Exploration of new instructional methods and procedures adapted to the changing situation in higher education.

- Renewal of emphasis upon core curriculum and basic disciplines.

Experts say that a college must grow internally as well as externally. Lenoir Rhyne, in its extensive and intensive planning, shows that it has recognized this and will continue its parallel growth throughout the Sixties.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MAKE PLANS FOR ALUMNI DAY

The Alumni association board of directors met this month to discuss a heavy agenda involving changes in Alumni Day activities, the giving of service awards, and the giving of alumni scholarships.

Present for the meeting were Dave Wright, association president; Mrs. D. R. Mauney, Jr., association secretary-treasurer; Lewis Carpenter, first vice-president; Earl Aiken, executive secretary;

Dr. D. Miles Aderholdt, Dr. William Fritz, Dr. Benjamin Goodman, Mrs. Judy Ford Houser, D. Harry Faggart, and Lloyd Little.

The major changes in Alumni Day, held on commencement weekend, which were discussed and approved are as follows:

1. This year a luncheon of all five-year reunion classes will be held in the dining hall at 12:00 noon with the graduating seniors as guests of the college.

2. The business of the alumni will be taken care of at an open business meeting held in the morning of Alumni Day. Time for the meeting will be announced in the May edition of the Alumni Bulletin.

3. The annual alumni dinner will be held at the college dining hall at 6:00 p.m. Alumni, family, and friends are all invited to attend.

4. The president's tea and class day exercises will be held as usual in the afternoon.

The board voted to give an annual distinguished alumni award to the outstanding alumnus of the year, and a service award to the individual, group, or busi-

BEARS GRID DATES FILLED EXCEPT ONE

Lenoir Rhyne college has announced a nine-game football schedule for the 1960 season including six against North State conference opponents.

The slate begins September 17 against Wofford at Spartanburg, S. C. The following week the defending North State champion and the NAIA number one ranked team of 1959 faces always-tough Presbyterian at Clinton, S. C.

The Bears, who rolled up ten straight victories before losing to Texas A & I in the Holiday Bowl in 1959, lose only five members of that team and probably will be favored to repeat their North State title for a sixth consecutive time.

There is one open date — October 29. Coach Clarence Stasavich says that he is trying to fill it. However, he reports that chances of finding an opponent for that date are slim.

All but one game will be played at night. The one exception is the Catawba game November 24 at Salisbury.

The schedule:

Sept. 17—Wofford at Spartanburg, South Carolina
Sept. 24—Presbyterian at Clinton, South Carolina
Oct. 1—Newberry at Newberry, South Carolina
Oct. 8—Appalachian at Hickory
Oct. 15—Guilford at Hickory
Oct. 22—W. Carolina at Hickory
Oct. 29—Open
Nov. 5—E. Carolina at Hickory
Nov. 12—Elon at Burlington
Nov. 24—Catawba at Salisbury

ness organization who has contributed most notably to Lenoir Rhyne during 1960. These awards will be presented at the evening dinner meeting. The recipients will be chosen by an anonymous committee to be appointed by the board of directors in the near future.

The board also voted to continue awarding alumni scholarships annually. Classes holding reunions at the May 28 Alumni Day include the following: 1905, 1910, 1915, 1920, 1925, 1930, 1935, 1940, 1945, 1950, and 1955.

DR. K. A. PRICE DIES; LEAVES GIFT TO LR

Dr. K. A. Price, '03, died recently at the age of 86 years. He deeded extensive farm land and other property to Lenoir Rhyne college. Dr. Price attended Lenoir Rhyne, the University of Virginia, and graduated from the Harvard university School of Medicine.

A native of Lexington county, South Carolina, Dr. Price had the largest medical practice in Hickory fifty years ago. He had been retired for a number of years.

ALUMNI NOTES

DR. M. L. STIREWALT, SR., DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

HICKORY: Dr. Martin Luther Stirewalt, Sr., retired professor of Bible, died March 10 unexpectedly. Dr. Stirewalt served three Lutheran pastorates and taught in five educational institutions, but was closely identified with Lenoir Rhyne for most his adult life.

He graduated from LR in 1902 and returned to the college in 1909 to serve for six years as professor of Bible and ancient languages. Later in 1921, he was granted the honorary doctor of divinity degree by Lenoir Rhyne and began a one-year term as a member of the board of trustees.

In 1931 he was again elected to the

CHOIR SETS TOUR

The 58-voice a capella choir will visit Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina on its annual concert tour March 27 to April 3.

The group, under the direction of Kenneth B. Lee will sing at Redeemer Lutheran church, Atlanta, Georgia; Resurrection Lutheran church, Augusta, Ga.; St. Matthew's church, Jacksonville, Florida; Trinity Lutheran, Bradenton, Fla.; and Trinity, St. Petersburg, Fla.

On its way back north, the choir will give concerts at St. Paul's, Savannah, Ga.; St. Matthew's Lutheran, Charleston, South Carolina; and Wittenberg Lutheran, Leesville, S. C.

Lenoir Rhyne's annual home concert will be April 7, in the P. E. Monroe auditorium.

Last year the choir toured the eastern portion of North Carolina.

Organist Performs Here

Raymond C. Boese, professor of organ and college organist at St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minnesota, presented a concert of classical music in March as part of the 1959-1960 Lecture Arts series.

Mr. Boese studied at the University of Redlands in California, where he received his Master of Music degree in organ. He has also studied in several European countries. Mr. Boese has taught at Earlham college and at Drake university, and has served on the faculty of music institutes.

His tour, which is taking Mr. Boese to several outstanding colleges and universities, is being made under the auspices of the Association of American Colleges arts program.

board of trustees by the United Evangelical Lutheran Synod of North Carolina and was continued in membership until his death, with the exception of one year (1953). He served as chairman of the board of trustees for sixteen years, from 1934 to 1950.

He also returned to the college as a professor in 1955, serving as associate professor of Bible and philosophy until June 1959.

He also served as instructor in Bible and ancient languages at Weidner Institute in Mulberry, Ind., from 1906 to 1908; as head of the department of practical theology at Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary, Maywood, Ill., from 1922-1930; and professor of systematic theology at Lutheran Theological Southern seminary, Columbia, S.C., from 1938 to 1952.

Pastorates served by Dr. Stirewalt included: St. Paul's Lutheran church at Frankfort, Ind., from 1915 to 1916; St. James Lutheran church in Concord, from 1916 to 1922; and St. John's Lutheran church in Salisbury, from 1930-1938.

Dr. Stirewalt was the author of two books, "The Curricula of Lutheran Theological Seminaries in the United States," and "Gospel Preaching for the Day," and served the United Lutheran Church in America in various capacities, including membership on the Common Service Book commission, the Board of Education, and the Court of Adjudication and Interpretation. He also served as a North Carolina representative to the conventions of the ULCA in 1936, 1938, 1940, 1942, and 1944.

Following his graduation from Lenoir Rhyne, Dr. Stirewalt attended the Chicago seminary, receiving his Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1906. He later attended the University of Virginia and the University of Chicago, and received his M.A. degree from Northwestern university in 1928. He was ordained into the Lutheran ministry in Chicago in 1907.

MIAMI—Jose G. Fernades, '57, recently joined the investigative staff of the U. S. Labor Department's wage-hour field office here. A native of Cuba, Mr. Fernandez has been in the accounting field since graduation from LR.
